

MOUCTAR OULARÉ

Mouctar Oularé, married with three children, holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology/Development and Adult Education (DEDA) from the University of Ouagadougou, Burkina Faso. He is a founder and member of several Guinean civil society organizations, including the Guinean Center for Training and Education for Development, which is his NGO, and the Guinean Literacy Network, which he led as Executive Secretary, adopting a participatory and inclusive approach. His activism within CSOs dates back to 1993 when, after his brilliant studies at the Ecole Normale d'Instituteurs, he graduated as the First of the Republic. He had the opportunity to work at Aide et Action, a French international organization for community literacy, especially for women, for their empowerment and monitoring of schooling.

In 2009, he joined Tostan Guinea where he is the National Coordinator. In this position, he gained solid experience on Tostan's community welfare approach based on human rights principles. In practice, he has demonstrated a commitment to human dignity for all. His active participation in the associative movements has allowed him to capitalize on his expertise in the management of literacy and non-formal education projects, training of trainers, support/accompaniment and production of pedagogical materials.
